Tanks Jabbing All Round Paris

By the Associated Press

LONDON, Aug. 18—American tanks, cruising at will, stabbed into the environs of Paris today and were easily within sight of the Eiffel tower. "American armored patrols are operating in the vicinity of Paris and between Paris and Chartres," said a dispatch datelined "On the Road to Paris."

The German radio, which previously had reported Paris in the front line of war, with the sound of guns plainly audible, declared Sherman tanks were only about 12 miles from the city limits and were waging a "war of movement in the area adjacent" to the city.

While Lt. Gen. Patton's forces struck lightning blows at the symbolic citadel of German strength in France, Gen. Montgomery's British and Canadians were rapidly sealing a new trap on remnants of the broken German 7th Army, estimated to have been reduced to between 40,000 and 100,000 men.

The whole Allied front to the west was swinging eastward from Caen against a groggy enemy after patrls had shot completely across the Falaise-Argentan gap.

A new trap is closing and "the circle is being completed," a British staff officer said.

Lt. Gen. Grerar, commander of the Canadian First Army, declared in a message to his troops on their successful jabs against the enemy that "we shall shortly knock him out."

Gen. Eisenhower's headquarters maintained almost complete silence on thrusts in the Paris vicinity and announced only the capture of Authon, 21 miles due east of Chartres and 22 miles southwest of Paris. St. Calaise, by-passed in the rush to Charters, also was mopped up.

Associated Press Correspondent Ball said the tanks were grinding along the "last lap toward Paris" in a broad 70-mile arc from Dreux on the west to Orleans on the south.

The only resistance he reported was by a few Germans still entrenched in a cemetery outside Chartres, and some German armor between aris and Chartres.

The Germans said the Americans were driving through St. Arnoult, 23 miles southwest of Paris and 17 miles from Versailles, western suburb of Paris, on a secondary road from Chartres.

They also said American armor had reached Rambouillet, 15 miles southwest of Versailles, on the main highway from Chartres.

DNB, German official news agency, said this was Patton's main thrust and led to a series of heavy battles.

The Berlin news agency Transocean declared German "formations which were extricated from the Argentan-Falaise bag are obviously to be riveted by new American attacks from the south at Laigle and Gace."

This indicated a Nazi fear that Patton again was feinting at Paris while actually intending a lightning drive northward to the Seine

NORTH FRANCE—Lightning drives have carried American armored columns to Authon, 30 miles from Paris . . . while Canadian forces have swung eastward along the Norman coast heading towards LeHavre, crossing the Dives river. Arrows indicate penetration of main Allied drives.

Yanks Coming! Paris Off Air

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Paris radio went silent today after reporting that the Allies had started an all-out drive for the capital.

During a silence lasting 24 hours the British Broadcasting Corp. instead of getting Paris during regular news periods heard a voice on the Paris wave length shouting in German:

"They are coming!"

The Yanks, of course.

Yank Riviera Casualties Thus Far Total Only 300

By EDWARD KENNEDY

ROME, Aug. 18 (AP)—Enemy resistance in Southern France was officially reported crumbling today before the advance of the U. S. Seevnth Army, consolidated into a mighty striming force by the union of all elements landed on the Riviera beachhead from the sea and air.

Known American casualties thus far total fewer than 300, Allied headquarters said, while German prisoners, including a general and his staff, were estimated at 7000 with the count still incomplete.

Maj. Gen. Patch's forces struck inland through the valleys of the Maritime Alps and spread out 50 airline miles along the coast both east and west.

Last official reports placed them within 10 miles of the once great naval base of Toulon and within six miles of Cannes.

The doughboys already possess a big chunk of the main lateral road across southern France, which in this area parallels the coast about a dozen miles inland. They were a considerable distance up the road that runs into the Rhone valley by way of Aix-en-Provence, 14 miles north of Marseille.

The U. S. Third, 45th and 36th divisions are taking part in the invasion of southern France.

The Nazi command had entrusted defense of the invasion area to two German infantry divisions, the 242nd and the 148th. The main Allied thrust was made between those two divisions, creating considerable confusion among enemy troops already badly battered by bombing.

Officially the troops were reported 25 miles inland, but unofficial reports put them beyond 30 miles.

The last pocket of resistance on the Hyeres islands off the coast was eliminated when big guns of an Allied battleship pounded the thick walls of a medieval fort on the island of Port-Cros.

Fall of La Napoule, coastal village four miles southwest of Cannes, gave the troops a full view of the resort city across the gulf of Napoule.

A naval communique said aircraft carriers were used by American and British planes to give cover to warships and bomb and strafe enemy positions.

Use of the carriers permitted far more effective fighter support than otherwise would have been possible, since nearest land bases were in Corsica, 150 miles away.

Warships bombarding the shore in invasion operations fired almost 16,000 shells of fiveinch calibre and above. Of these 12,500 were 12-inch or larger. Results were reported "most effective in neutralizing enemy artillery."

Germans Burn Own Towns to Balk Reds

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The retreating Germans are burning their own towns and villages along the East Prussian border to prevent their being of use to the advancing Russians, the Moscow radio said today.

(An NBC broadcast from Moscow said the Red army was reported to have crossed into Germany. The Red army reached the East Prussian boundary yesterday.)

The German communique said the Russians—mopping up an estimated 200,000 Germans trapped in the Baltic states — had crossed Lake Peipus and are established on the west shore in Estonia. The drive across the lake, 30 miles wide in places, possibly outflanked the second largest Estonian city of Tartu (population 60,000). Russians troops were 16 miles southeast at last reports.

The Germans also announced they had lost Vilkaviskis in Lithuania, 12 miles from East Prussia, in a heavy tank battle in which large air formations participated.

The Moscow broadcast, recorded by the Soviet monitor, said Soviet fliers spotted fires along the whole East Prussia frontier.

"Schirwindt is burning," one flier reported, "let them burn it. Now they are burning their own towns, not ours."

Italian Front Battles Dwindle

ROME, Aug. 18 (AP)—The tense situation in the northern portions of Florence, into which German tanks yesterday were reported to have penetrated, was described officially as much easier today, but there still was a certain amount of enemy shipping from northwest and northeast suburbs.

Activity along the rest of the Italian front remained slight, limited almost entirely to minor patrol clashes and artillery duels. The enemy along the north bank of the Arno, however, showed increased sensitivity to probing American patrols, bringing down artillery concentrations at a number of points.

Lt. Gen. Alexander's headquarters, meawhile, disclosed that the U. S. 91st Infantry Division now is in the line as part of the American Fifth Army on the western end of the front.

Jap Supply Lines Knotting Up

By the Associated Press

Japan's supply lines south of the Philippines and west of New Guinea are being tied in knots, Gen. MacArthur reported today. His appraisal of the enemy's deteriorating position accompanied new disclosures of air blows on widely-scattered bases from the Bonins to Halmahera.

Miti airdrome on the latter island 300 miles below the Philippines, quivered under 87 tons of bombs Wednesday. Twenty-three parked planes were destroyed or damaged in the attack. A freighter was hit off Davao, southern Philippines.

Chungking reported Jap forces, reinforced with two more divisions, struck from the north and south against Chinese battling to recapture Hengyang, Southeast China rail junction. The Japanese were credited with a force of 210,000 men in the vital area along the Hankow-Canton railway, which the Japanese covet.

Other Chinese forces met stiffened resistance in efforts to take Lunglin, Tengchung and Mangshih, Burma road towns in Yunnan Province.

Five Baby Bandits Tell of $128 Killing

Five teen-age Roxbury boys, murderers all, according to their police captors, were taken from their beds early today in a series of surprise arrests which left authorities with confessions they said solved one of the most savage robbery-slayings in Boston's history.

The victim was John F. Prunty, 40-year-old Marine Corps veteran of two World Wars, whose battered body was found Sunday under bushes in the Fenway.

His five alleged killers, who spent the near-dawn hours singing "jive" in their Back Bay police station cells, was taken into Roxbury District Court, where warrants were issued by Judge James A. Delay. The young prisoners amazed police by giggling and nudging each other in court.

They are:

Thomas Durant, 15, of Alphonsus st., Gerard P. Shields, 15, and Francis X. Mulligan, 15, both of Tremont st.; Francis X. Muller, of Burney st. and John J. Donovan, 16, of Worthington st.

In an interval between making their cells resound with jive singing, two of the youths swore they had been overcome by conscience and placed their share of the loot in church poor boxes, police stated.

They were arrested as the result of the capture of another young gang. This one had a 16-year-old "queen" who police said joined with four boys and another girl in holding up a merchant seaman in the Fenway. Their haul comprised $6 and a watch.

The girl, who is held with the four boys at the Back Bay station, peddled the watch for $2, was caught and gave an account of crime which led to the roundup of her own "mob" as well as of the murder gang, said police.

The vicious assault in the Fenway was premeditated and executed by a newly formed "baby bandit" gang whose members topped off the murder by calmly sitting on the steps of the G. A. R. clubhouse, Elmwood st., Roxbury Crossing, and agreeing on division of the loot, police assert.

Prunty was killed for $128.

The boys in custody, one 16, the others 15, never had been arrested before.

The stenographically recorded confession obtained by police is a detailed account of methodical planning carried out with savagery. It relates:

The boys wanted some money. They resolved to stage a holdup. They picked a remote and dark spot near a bridle path in the Fenway. Saturday night they went there.

The plan was to "take the first man who came along and didn't look like he could take care of himself."

Four of the boys formed an ambush in deep shrubbery. The fifth, a lookout, stationed himself near by.

Prunty's fate was to be "the first man." He came down the path at 9:20, alone.

One youth sprang out of the bushes and tripped him. Prunty staggered. The lookout struck him from behind. The other boys joined in the assault.

The former marine fought with fury. Blows and kicks were showered on him. Apparently in some desperate hope of saving his money, he pulled a small roll from his pocket and held it in his right fist as he battled.

Odds were too much for him. The gang closed in and felled him. Two youths straddled his chest. One pinned down his arms. One CONTOOCOOK, N. H., Aug. 18 (AP)—Harold C. Kemp, meter reader for an electric company, is such an expert on food canning women call him up for advice and recipes, his wife said today.

Last year he put up 339 jars of assorted produce and plans to beat that record this year.

"When I read meters," Kemp says, "if a woman is making piccalilli and it smells good, I get her recipe. Then I make it and if I don't like the taste I add something more."

His most famous product is a ripe cucumber pickle relish.

Whitney to Head Own Firm

By JOHN McLEAN AND JOSEPH FRANKLAND

Richard Whitney, 56, paroled Sing Sing convict and five-term president of the New York Stock Exchange, has resigned his executive duties with the National Fireworks Co. of Hanover and seeks to establish his own business in Florida, it was disclosed today.

The ex-broker, successful in two Bay State jobs, has asked the Massachusetts Parole Board for permission to leave the jurisdiction of this State for his new Florida venture.

Now a resident of Boston's Back Bay, Whitney today is the broker for a large industrial concern in negotiating the sale of New Hampshire manufacturing properties.

Upon completion of the sale, the Beverly-born financier has arranged to establish a wholesale frozen fruit business in Florida with permission of both Massachusetts and New York parole authorities.

A spokesman for the Massachusetts board said both this state and New York view his application with favor and virtually have granted the permission in view of his excellent record.

Whitney came under Massachusetts supervision in 1938 when, as a Sing Sing parolee, he came to Barnstable to manage the farm formerly owned by the family of Gaspar Bacon.

RICHARD WHITNEY

This was only a stepping stone to a job with the National Fireworks Co. in Hanover, which he applied for in the regular channels. In less than three years, he worked his way from a clerk, at nominal salary, to executive assistant to the vice-president.

"His record with us was excellent," David Black, vice-president and general manager of the Hanover plant, told the American today. "He left our employ about two or three months ago with the highest of recommendations."

George Whitney, a member of the famed New York banking firm of J. P. Morgan Co. and brother of Richard, confirmed the fact that Richard had changed occupations today in a telephone interview.

"Yes, I know my brother is going into a new business," he said. "I do not feel obligated to say what it is. However, he is not associated with my firm."

Parole board officials here revealed that Whitney stated he had no desire ever to go into the banking or brokerage business again—a business that cost him $11,000,000 with the crash of his New York firm in the middle 30s.

Whitney has been making his home in Boston with his socialite wife, Gertrude, mother of his two daughters, Nancy and Alice. She joined him on Cape Cod as soon as he was given freedom.

Whitney was a member of a distinguished banking family, a graduate of swank Groton and Harvard and a member of New York's most exclusive clubs.

Once known as "The White Knight of Wall Street," he was sentenced to Sing Sing in 1938, at the age of 50.

In the face of pitiless publicity he accepted full responsibility for the crash of his firm and asked no quarter.

The Polish station declared 30 Polish daily newspapers "now appear in the capital," and "yesterday the Polish home forces held their positions against heavy and continuous German attacks."

Ruins of St. Lo Testify To Power of U. S. Guns

By WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST, JUNIOR
Written Expressly for the Hearst Newspapers

LONDON, Aug. 18—Few correspondents are assigned permanently to our units in France. The rest of us have a specific story in mind, submit an outline of it to the proper authorities and then just wait until the orders come through.

I took my plans and specifications for another tour of Allied lines to officers of the United States Ninth Air Force who agreed to sponsor my trip, so after another morning, I went out early to a nearby airfield and was flown down to one of our troop carrier command fields.

Since D-Day these planes have been used mostly to carry cargo across the channel and to bring back wounded men.

We landed at a new and large field where I contacted a dispatch officer and asked him if he could let me have a car to take me the few miles down the road to headquarters. A friend of mine, Col. Giblin, came up and, as luck would have it, he was leaving for St. Lo immediately.

Soon we were traveling through little towns which, just a week ago, had been held by the enemy.

Soon we reached St. Lo—or rather what was left of it. The last time I had been near there it was an extremely unhealthy neighborhood but now our trucks, artillery and tanks were running along the roads in broad daylight, and in perfect safety.

Because of the 'round-the-clock bombing of German factories during the past year the Nazis' air force represents no threat whatever to our invasion forces. They come out only at night.

With the exception of Cassino, I have never seen any town of that size as totally and completely razed as St. Lo. Only ruins, shells of buildings and rubble remain.

When a town becomes a battlefield as was St. Lo, its civilians have to retreat to the countryside beyond, taking with them only such belongings as they can load into wagons and baby carriages or carry on their backs, living in fields beyond the enemy lines until the Germans pull out. Then they slowly return to what were once their homes.

Sometimes little groups of thirty or forty persons, with their cows and possessions, form a caravan at the edge of the road, but more often they come back by twos and threes.

We have a civil affairs section in the Army whose job is to relocate these people, try to find places for them to live in and to distribute food to them. It is pitiful, but is an inevitable side of war.

I spent the night in an old farmhouse. German planes were overheard during the night and our anti-aircraft guns went at them with a vengeance. There was fierce combat, but outside of disturbing our slumbers the German planes seemed to have little effect.

The next day I went over to Ninth Air Force headquarters to meet Gen. Quesada who commands all other planes in France.

Gen. Quesada was inspecting the remains of a shot-up jeep in which he had been driving the day before at the front. He had come smack up against a German mobile gun, and before he could hit the ditch, the Germans had put a shot through his jeep from end to end.

Luckily, the shell was low. It tore through the jeep's right front wheel and went through the gas tank on which the general was sitting.

St. Malo's Mad Colonel Quits

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The mad Col. Andreas von Aulock—newly decorated by Hitler—has surrendered in St. Malo after holding out 11 days under heavy American fire.

The German high command announced today that "the garrison of St. Malo succumbed to enemy superiority."

A wounded veteran of the Caucasus fighting who pledged to turn the battle of the Breton port into "another Stalingrad," Aulock was reported in a DNB broadcast to have messaged the Fuehrer:

"Further resistance had to cease as a result of lack of food. The fight is over. Heil Hitler."

VACATIONING—Jimmy Carrick, 7-year-old Pittsburgh boy who is mascot of all Seabees, enjoys a vacation at Ocean City, N. U. S. Fliers Again Bomb Ploesti

ROME, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Mediterranean Air Force struck the Ploesti oil field installations in Romania again last night in the wake of a daylight attack yesterday by about 500 American heavy bombers and many fighters.

The American attack caused fires and explosions in the big Romano Americano refinery.

A German fighter airdrome at Nis, Yugoslavia, also was hit yesterday.

Patriotic" workmen handling meat and vegetables shipped into Boston during the seven-day heat wave just ended did such a splendid job in maintaining proper refrigeration and in speeding distribution of such foodstuffs that they are deserving of public commendation, John F. Nazi Troops Flee Into Switzerland

LONDON, Aug. 18 (INS)—German troops are crossing into Switzerland, asking to be interned, as a result of the successful uprising by the French Maquis, Reuter's reported today from Geneva.

The reports said that Maquis had captured a whole stretch of the Franco-Swiss border between Veyrier and St. Julian.

The German garrison at St. Gingolph was said to have crossed into Switzerland carrying all of its arms and equipment. Near Perly, 15 Germans crossed the border wearing only trousers. Maquis had stripped them of the rest of their clothing.

How Leave-Lottery Is Held in Pacific

(The following story was written by an Army sergeant attached to the press relations office in the Southwest Pacific, and distributed by the Associated Press. The author's name cannot be used for military reasons.)

WITH 37TH INFANTRY IN SOUTHWEST PACIFIC—When you speak of an "eligible" man on this island you don't mean a bachelor with a southern exposure foxhole, an extra pair of dry fatigues, a $500 Samarui sword, and rows of ribbons and medals.

An "eligible" here is one who has qualified for home leave by two years' overseas service. Each month the division is given a small quota and drawings are held.

Many refuse to attend the draw. Men offer 20, 30, 40 and 50 to one they won't be drawn, their voices betraying hope they'll lose their bets. Men take refuge in games, but keep runners on the outskirts of the crowd. Others hide in their tents, wash their clothes, sun their blankets—do anything to avoid being there.

Men plead with the chaplains to ask the Lord to let them be the lucky ones.

"I am a mighty good boy," Sgt. Harold Aitken of Frankfort, Ky., said to Chaplain Frederick Kirker, Columbus, O. "Please try to get my number drawn, and I'll be even better if the Lord will just give me a break."

The chaplain's answer was drowned in the bellowing of a bearded jungle fighter who said he knew he was an unlucky so-and-so.

"Hell," he said, "I'll be here till my shoes rot, and mosquitoes chew two more inches off me, I get slant eyes, and the centipedes call me by my first name."

But they all ache for home.

They had sailed out more than two years ago. They hadn't seen an American girl, tasted a cocktail, slept in a bed—hadn't heard any voice kinder than that of a sergeant. There were men with babies at home they had never seen, men whose parents had died, men whose homes had burned down.

It does something to a man not to see the light of a town, drug stores, chain stores, street cars, houses, American people.

There was a draw for Headquarters company.

The coconut log benches were filled an hour ahead.

Capt. Ralph Westfall of Ft. Collins, Col., explained two privates were to be drawn from the 49 eligibles, two PFC's from 47, one T-5 from 37, three buck sergeants from 55, two staffs from 21 and two sergeants from the first two grades out of 14. He dumped the names of the private in a Spam box. Warrant Officer David H. Brill of Quaker City, O., shook the box. The captain stuck an arm in.

An infantry man said: "This is a draw for life. If I get home I get a good chance to come out of this thing."

The captain called: "Pvt. C. L. Kendrick!"

C. L. Kendrick of Spray N. C., jumped in the air, saluted three times, howled like a banshee couched with turpentine and started toward his quarters shouting.

"Aloysius Wilhelm!"

This Toledoan passed Pvt. Kendrick before the first banyan tree was reached. From then on the clearing was like a hoe-down in Mississippi.

Men were going home.

Men were going back to the United States of America.

Men were so happy they made little sense.

And the hundreds and the thousands whose names weren't drawn walked back to their holes in the ground and settled down to hope until the next draw.

HUMIDITY HIGH AS MERCURY FALLS; COOLER WEEK-END DUE

Boston's record-breaking heat wave was just a memory today with cooling showers shoving the mercury into the 70's and a promise of fair and cooler for the week-end.

High humidity—it was 97 per cent at 10:30 a. m., remained to remind Bostonians of their intense discomfort during the past seven days when the daytime temperatures were stalled in the high 90's.

The weather man predicted that the showers will end this evening and Saturday will be fair and cooler. Temperatures were expected to average from two to five degrees below normal during the next five days.

Moderately cool weather will continue through Tuesday with average rainfall of less than an inch. The rain will occur as showers late Monday. Rising temperatures were predicted for Wednesday.

Now that it's all over, the meteorologists tell Bostonians the stubborn seven-day sizzler was caused by "stagnation of the South Atlantic high pressure area."

That area is in the vicinity of Bermuda and the winds blow about it clockwise. On its easterly side the winds are cool, dry northeasters, but they have been blowing southeast.

The winds on the west of the area are warm, muggy southwesterly winds blowing due northeast—that's directly on the east coast of the United States and into New England.

It was those southwesterly winds which for seven days blocked off the cold front which has been trying in vain to shove southeast from Canada.

Nobody cared to attempt an explanation why the high pressure area remained stagnant so long.

Sen. Lee Has Ward 3 Poll Data Locked up

State Senator Robert L. Lee of Charlestown, in a move which usually precedes court action, has had all ballots, check lists and papers used in Ward 3 in the July 11 primaries impounded by the Boston election commission, it was revealed at City Hall today.

Lee was the victor in the primary contest in his section, which in addition to Ward 3, includeh his home district and East Boston.

News of Lee's action was confirmed by Chairman William A. Motley, Jr., of the election commission. Motley stated that formal request for impounding of the ballots was made in writing by Lee and that the document does not contain charges of any kind.

Lee is absent from Boston today and no explanation of his action was forthcoming from his Charlestown residence.

4 Steal Safe With $5500

When she lost her pocketbook with $1400 three months ago, Miss Florence Gabarino, 40, of Forest st., Medford, decided against the further folly of carrying so much money around with her.

So she bought a safe, a two and a half foot square, 500-pound safe, and had it installed in a second-floor bedroom in her home. For both camouflage and decorative purposes, she placed a table cover and lamp on top.

Today, the safe containing the $5500 payroll for the 60 workers she employs in her plant, the Globe Nickel Plating Co., Arlington ave., Charlestown, and an undisclosed amount of stocks and bonds and jewels, was missing.

The strongbox was stolen from her home by four men.

The theft occurred while Miss Gabarino was dining out with friends. So brazen were the robbers during a heavy thunder shower that neighbors failed to realize what was going on until it was too late.

A few days after Miss Gabarino lost her pocketbook and the $1400, it was found and returned to her.

Mother Finds 3 Tiny Roamers

A worried Dorchester mother was reunited at the Chardon st. home today with her three wandering youngsters whom police found toddling down Westville st., Dorchester, clad in their nighties.

The youngsters are Michael Hanson, 5; Patricia, 3, and William, 2.

Shortly after the young trio had been put to bed at the Chardon st. home, Mrs. Charlotte Hanson of Westville st. claimed them but agreed to let them sleep and take them home in the morning.

The mother told police the children had been left in the care of a neighbor while she attended a show in Boston.

MORE GOOD NEWS—Filmstress Anne Gillis, after learning through the Red Cross that her fiance, Lt. David Thompson, is safe though a Nazi prisoner, has just been informed that Army Air Force members in Italy have named her their "Wallet Girl." Wife Begs Father Of 7 to Return

Leaving seven children under 16 years of age and his wife, an East Boston cab driver quit his job 10 days ago and has not been heard from since.

The disappearance of George H. Farnkoff, 42, of West Eagle st., has been reported to police, but today his wife, Josephine, begged G. H. Farnkoff him to return and save the family from eviction and starvation.

"I have an idea he is playing the violin in some cafe. He played it years ago and often said he wanted to go back to that work," she said.

"Our eviction notice says we must get out by Aug. 26."

F. D. Plans Told For New League

NEW YORK, Aug. 18 (AP)—President Roosevelt plans to submit a new "League of Nations" to the Senate and ask for power to enforce peace treaties, the New York Times says in a Washington dispatch.

The paper says by separating the world security organization from peace treaties the Administration hopes to get the new league operating possibly before the end of the war. Plans, it added, aim for a treaty establishing the new security organization for presentation to the Senate before 1945, with hopes it will be ratified before spring.

Quoting "responsible officials," the Times says the Administration would not rely entirely on the new organization to deal with future aggression by present enemies, but would ask the Senate "to authorize them not only to demobilize the Germans and Japanese and to control their industries, but to enforce those terms even if they have to take military action to do so."

Nelson Asks Law To Guard WPB Data

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18 (AP)—WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson asked Congress today to provide stiff penalties for anyone who discloses any of the confidential information industry has given.

Chairman Sumners (D.) of Texas, of the House judiciary committee, introduced the legislation Nelson proposed, and said he thought it should be adopted.

Robots Still Blasting London, So. England

LONDON, Aug. 18 (AP)—The Germans made a short flying bomb attack on London and the southern counties early last night and a terse official announcement this morning said both casualties and damage were caused.

Bristol Bar Plans Crossley Inquiry

The Bristol County Bar Association plans a thorough investigation of William C. Crossley's sudden resignation as district attorney of Bristol, Barnstable, Nantucket and Dukes counties while under fire from the attorney general's office, President Thomas C. Crowther of Fall River, said today.

"The executive committee of the Bar Association will take the matter up at its next meeting," Crowther said.

No explanation for Crossley relinquishing the post he held for 18 years came from him, Atty.-Gen. Bushnell or Gov. Saltonstall.

Crossley's office today was taken over by Asst. Atty.-Gen. William F. Hayes on a temporary basis. Gov. Saltonstall announced he would appoint Frank E. Smith of Taunton, Crossley's first assistant, to fill the vacancy, and will submit his name to the executive council Wednesday.

The district attorney announced his resignation in a one-sentence letter to the attorney general, which Bushnell forwarded to the Governor with the notation that his action "makes unnecessary any further proceedings against the resigning district attorney."

Crossley's abrupt move climaxed a six months' drive by Bushnell to oust him. Several weeks ago, Bushnell appeared before the Bristol County grand jury and complained that the prosecutor had failed to enforce the law, but the grand jury took no action.

Soft Underbelly

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Aug. 18 (AP)—Americans fighting around Orleans are meeting desultory opposition from the German "atomach" battalion.

The unit is made up of inferior soldiers with stomach ailments who, because of their special dietetic requirements, were formed into a single unit.

New Drug Cures Toxic Thyroid

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 18 (AP)—H. J. Mang, pharmacist at the Ochsner clinic here, reported today that experiments with a new drug have shown good results in treatment of toxic thyroid, regardless of type.

The drug, thiouracil, has not yet been placed on the market.

In a report on 72 cases in the New England Journal of Medicine, Dr. Robert H. Williams and Dr. Howard M. Clute of Boston said: "All, regardless of type of thyrotoxity or of previous treatment, eventually attained a normal metabolic rate and a remission of the disorder."

Patriots Capture Town, 300 Nazis

THE SWISS-FRENCH FRONTIER AT ANNEMASSE, Aug. 18 (AP)—Three hundred Germans of Annemasse capitulated to French Partisans, and 120 others fled to internment in neutral Switzerland after a sharp three-hour battle today.

The victory gave the Maquis full control of the Haute Savoie frontier along the south shore of Lake Geneva from St. Gingolph, westward to a point just outside Bellegarde, and inland to a depth of almost 75 miles.

The exuberant population of approximately 5000 paraded the streets singing the Marseillaise.

French activity also has expanded in the Doubs and Jura regions. A number of Germans were killed at Cure. The resistance forces seized trucks and automobiles in preparation for an offensive.

It's Vital Now to Can Vegetables

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head, Vegetable Garden Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School and Director of the Boston Record-American Advertiser Garden on Boston Common

With practically every garden in the state damaged by the recent dry spell, it appears likely there will be a serious shortage of late vegetables this fall.

Crop losses because of the drought in New England are estimated at $10,000,000.

It is more important than ever to can vegetables now if they are available. We cannot tell what the situation will be as regards shipped-in produce. So if you have any surplus of crops by all means preserve them.

In some sections gardens already are almost a complete loss, but there are a few crops worth trying to save. Tomatoes and carrots, which are the most valuable from a food standpoint, will stand considerable drought and will survive, and give some return if watered. Keep in mind that canned tomato products will be scarce this winter and it is therefore important to try to save this crop.

Leaf crops such as lettuce, spinach, Swiss chard and cabbage are cool weather crops and have not been able to stand this weather. They are almost a total loss.

If we get some rain there is still time to plant some crops such as lettuce, spinach chard and beets. Late planting of these will go a long way in extending the producing season.

In the spring, we suggested that you use hybrid sweet corn instead of open pollinated sorts. This has again proved sound, as can be noticed by the way the hybrid corn has stood the drouth. We are still picking good quality corn in spite of the weather. These hybrid varieties have much more vigor and also seem to be more resistant to insect attacks such as the corn-ear worm. Watch corn carefully and do not allow it to become overgrown during hot weather.

If your fall squash is still alive watch for the squash bug, which is now active. The grayish black insects are now full grown and can do a lot of damage, especially during dry weather. They suck the juices from the plant.

Control of the squash bug is best obtained by hand picking the adults and destroying the reddish egg masses on the underside of the leaf. The adults seek shelter under refuse on the ground and many can be trapped by placing boards or shingles around the squash plants. The insects will collect under them and can then be destroyed.

Boston University Day in No. Ireland

By HUCK FINNEGAN

NORTHERN IRELAND—This was Boston University Day. Lt. G-2 McGregor, a Miami pal of Dave Wilson in pre-war days, appeared early on the scene.

"There's a Capt. Kelly from Boston over at ——. We can make it in an hour. How about it?" Right down my alley.

The sign on Capt. Francis X. Kelly's desk read "Regimental Adjutant." That's good for a chap who's little more than two years ago was head of the commercial department at Weymouth High. . . . he never knew.

Kelly is a Weymouth boy born and bred. His home is 38 Johnson rd., and he graduated from that school in '30 from Boston University in '34 and taught at Weymouth until Feb of '42, when he obtained a leave of absence, took off for Richmond, Va., and enlisted as a private in the infantry. He made OCS after his 13 weeks' basic and was commissioned in September. Fast traveling. He's been going up the ladder since.

Kelly also coached Weymouth's wrestling team to state championships in '40 and '41 . . . of the Red Sox . . . of his father Mike, who worked for Tom Lawson until 1918, then spent 25 years as Fore River policeman . . . of nephew Tom Kelly, star Weymouth athlete, who is now with the Army in England.

"You must meet the rest of the B. U. overseas club," he said, and off we went for another hour's ride. The jeep whoa-ed at a castle whose architecture was reminiscent of BC's Gothic towers, whose grounds were another Arnold Arboretum. Hard at work inside were Maj. Fred Bailey, Jr., of 40 Hancock st., Dorchester, and Maj. Joseph J. Sullivan, of 29 Raymond st., Cambridge.

Bailey graduated from English High '31, B. U. '39 (year at Bridgton). He played guard for Leo Daley and Bill Ohrenberger in high school, for Pat Harley in college when BU tied BC 0-0 and beat 'em 13-6. Fanning and Nucleum were there at the time. His father is Dr. Fred E. Bailey, deputy health commissioner for 40 years, now a commander in the Navy. Fred, Jr., married Margaret Shea of 64 Ellison ave., Dorchester. He's 27.

Sullivan is 26. He graduated from BC High in '35 where he played third base well enough to leap into the Cape League. ("Joe Kern of your paper pitched for us. He was real good.") The aunt who brought him up, Miss Anna Sullivan, lives at 112 Amory st., Cambridge.

He married Lee Kane of Cambridge before he sailed. He had hoped to become a teacher-coach never had a chance. A member of B U's ROTC, he went into the Army directly from college. He has 41 years' service behind him. Bailey worked a year for Edison before he donned khaki on March 1, 1940.

A fourth member of the B. U. overseas club, Mal Dave Summers, was in a hospital far away.

These boys have been away from home for a long, long time. This was the first correspondent that has penetrated their territory. They were tuned for news. "What's going on back home?" asked Sullivan, producing a pocket edition of . . . who held down Somerville's 7th grade in B.'s home town of Cambridge. "It's all we've been talking about."

Joe Cahill topped Earl of Curtis, Coach Tom Cahill and Paul Cahill and an even dozen conversations were about absentees of the B.C.-B.U. football game of '42 and the old-fogged Commonwealth Grid classic.

There was the urgent desire to get the return, "relive the other classic apple" and "have a punch," the urge to get back home.

What then? Work, of course, and jobs awaiting for him. But Bailey, at 27, had worked only a year. Sullivan at 26 had worked at all. What was to step next?

"Choices," they agreed and you were convinced that the Veterans of Foreign Wars or its successor would be a potent organization after this war.

In the huddle with the BU triumvirate was a slim, bright-eyed lad who looked familiar. He was Capt. Edward J. Regan, of 111 Wallace st., Providence. He was a graduate of Providence Classical '30 and Rhode Island State '40. Had he ever run at the Garden?

Sure enough, he had been on the crack R. I. State two-mile relay teams there. He had run across country in the fall and finished among the first five in the New Englands. Like Sullivan, he had entered the Army from college.

There was the sergeant who kept the majors supplied with Boston Records and Americans. He was Fred Ciliberto, 25, of 118 Falcon st., East Boston. He had graduated from E. B. High and played the drums at Foley's club in Revere.

He had been a non-com two years to the day.

"Be sure and tell sister Henrietta and Uncle Jim (his parents are dead) not to worry. I worry more when I know they're worrying about me." He appreciated the letters Anna De Bellis, 247 Maverick st., was sending him. Also those he was getting from his brother Frank, in the Army in Oklahoma.

kicked him in the stomach. Another held his legs.

They heard him say, "God Almighty."

They removed his belt, coiled it around his neck and buckled it tight. The fight was over. It had been almost a noiseless one, for all its viciousness. No other pedestrian was approaching.

From Prunty's clenched right fist one of the gang pried the roll of bills—$8.

His watch pocket yielded a richer haul. Avaricious hands found two $50 bills there.

The gang started to move away. One youth thought it might be a good idea to loosen the belt around Prunty's neck. It had been pulled so severely the buckle fell away as he handled the clasp.

The five killers ran through the Fenway to Forsythe st., then to Dempster st. and into Elmwood st. to the G. A. R. clubhouse.

There on the steps, as unknowing pedestrians passed by, they held a whispered consultation about the money. The two $50 bills posed a problem in division.

One of the gang held the $8 taken fom Prunty's hand and $20 found in various pockets. The youths proceeded to a Tremont st. tavern. There they succeeded in having one $50-bill changed to their liking.

Their next stop was a Roxbury Crossing restauant, where an obliging propietor changed the other fifty.

A five-way split followed. A first adventure in crime had been successful.

Today, in their cells, the boys said they didn't know Prunty had died until they read about it in the newspapers.

"We must have been in a fog when we did that," police quoted one of the boys.

The investigation and arrests were spearheaded by Sgt. William Condon and Special Officers John H. Curran and John J. McNicholas, all of the Back Bay station. Participating also were Lt. John Watkins, Sgt. Mortimer O'Connor and Special Officer Leon Farrell, all of Back Bay, and Joseph Falcon of the homicide squad.

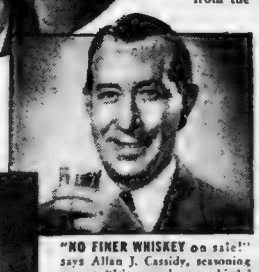
Good Judges of Good Whiskey To Try a Great New Brand!

"RICH AS GOLD!" says MacDonald Dunbar, printing executive. "The kind of whiskey I wish I'd discovered eight years ago! It's got fine body! Fine flavor! Fine aroma! You can't ask for more in a drink!"

"GOOD? IT'S MAGNIFICENT!" is the judgment of James Farrell, president of a printing company. "It looks like the finest! Tastes like the finest! I've tried many whiskies since Repeal, but I don't think I've ever poured a richer, mellower drink!"



"NO FINER WHISKEY on sale!" says Allan J. Cassidy, seasoning expert. "It's smooth as a whistle! Rich as cream! Tastes like a million—and blends like the most expensive whiskies in the world!"

Wouldn't You Like to Serve a Whiskey that has the Full, Ripe Richness of the World's Finest, Most Limited Brands? If you would, now you can! Read why!

● This invitation is written for the few men who are really good judges of good whiskey . . . who can appreciate a whiskey that is as gloriously rich, creamy and delicious as the world's finest, most limited brands—and who do not need anything more to confirm them in their judgment.

We set out several years ago to see if we could make such a whiskey. We spared no expense. We experimented. We drew from the world's choicest reserves. We selected the finest grains, and backed them up with the world's most delicate skill.

The result is—Fleischmann's PREFERRED, one of the world's most remarkable whiskies. Velvety! Creamy! Full!! Delicious! We are sorry that we can offer Fleischmann's PREFERRED only in limited amounts as all our distilling facilities are devoted 100% to the war effort. If your dealer has Fleischmann's PREFERRED, try it! You'll always be glad you did!

Cheaper, Better Heat

THE AMERICAN anthracite industry has announced a "secret weapon" all its own. It is an economical, completely automatic, highly compact furnace, embodying new principles of combustion and radiation.

With it, the anthracite producers plan to battle the oil and gas companies for the huge fuel market in the postwar homes.

Already called the "heat jeep" by some of its enthusiastic sponsors, the new device is as simple as pieces of ordinary steel pipe, a motor, fan, a pump and worm gear.

In operation, it resembles the familiar meat grinder in the neighborhood butcher shop, except that anthracite is used instead of meat.

We have long felt that coal-consuming heating plants could be improved and made easier and less expensive to operate.

Often we said: "The country which has given the world such marvelous inventions as the automobile, airplane, radio and television should not be satisfied with stoves and furnaces which utilize only a portion of the fuel that goes into them and allow as much as 50 per cent of the heat that is generated to go up the chimney."

Apparently, the anthracite men are thinking along the same lines.

Of course, the most efficient of all fuels for New England is electricity, which could be manufactured abundantly and adequately if our numerous rivers, tidewater basins and stream-fed lakes were properly developed for the production of power.

Some day we shall have legislatures that will not tolerate the monstrous and almost scandalous waste of one of our biggest natural assets.

When that fortunate time comes, our homes, factories and business establishments will be heated at a fraction of the present cost; and our industries, electrified, will be able to [illegible] of their competitors in the progressive States and areas of the Union.

We Can Curb Forest Fires

MORE THAN three thousand acres of Maine's valuable timberland have been swept by fires in the past four months.

This is a tremendous loss, and one that will be felt increasingly in the postwar period when the need for lumber and pulpwood is certain to be greater than at any other time in history.

Forest fires are regrettable because most of them are preventable.

If we recruited volunteer civilian armies to patrol our wooded areas with the same enthusiasm as we recruited air raid wardens, the damage from forest fires would be reduced as much as 75 per cent.

Many times in the past we have suggested the formation of such patrols, but our New England Governors never seemed to be very much interested.

We Must Keep Our Fleet

WHEN the war ends and more than twelve million members of the fighting forces return home, we shall need all our existing industries and many new ones.

A principal industry and an abundant source of employment is our American Merchant Marine.

Mr. Douglas P. Falconer, executive director of the United Seaman's Service, emphasized this in his recent address to the Propeller Club of the Port of New York.

"The people of this country, especially those in the inland States, are rapidly becoming aware of the significance of a strong American Merchant Marine," Mr. Falconer said.

"More and more, they are beginning to look upon the nation's shipping as one of the most vital job-producing industries.

"With the ships, the know-how of management, the skill and high morale of merchant seamen and a war record unexcelled by any other nation, it would be national folly to allow our merchant fleet to rot in our rivers as we did after the last war."

Mr. Falconer is right. We cannot sink ships without also sinking jobs, for a very substantial part of our postwar economic and national security lies in the keels of vessels flying the United States flag.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18—If you would like to know what I am doing, except being hot, I am wallowing in sympathy for the American business man who has to come to Washington on business.

I had always felt vaguely sorry for these gentlemen because I had heard of the gruelling things they go through. But it was never brought home with real poignance until today.

There may be reasons for some of the red tape which entangles the business visitor, because they often want things that are not available, or anyway, not immediately available. But I did not want any priorities or allocations.

All I wanted was an answer to this question:

"Is there a swimming pool under the Pentagon Building?"

Well, you would have thought the way things went that I wanted to build a swimming pool under the Pentagon Building. I tried to explain that I did not want a single priority [illegible] a bag of steel, a [illegible] of earth shoring or even a plank for a diving board.

"I don't want to rent a swimming pool or even have it [illegible] I just want a white line," I added, in desperation. "If I [illegible]

Hollywood Today

By Louella O. Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18—Really interesting news that Freddie March is ready to sign a contract to play Major Joppolo in "A Bell for Adano." I don't mean the movie, either. He is being signed by Leland Hayward for the stage play, which will reach New York before the movie is finished.

Leland expects to open in September. I asked him if he were going to produce other plays. He said if anything happened to appeal to him as much as John Hersey's "A Bell for Adano" he would turn producer again. I suspect Maggie Sullavan's great success in "The Voice of the Turtle" is reponsible for Leland's interest in the theater.

LITTLE JOYCE REYNOLDS has certainly won a place for herself on the Warner lot since "Janie." Interesting that she will play the shrewish daughter in "Mildred Pearce," a real departure from the wholesome schoolgirl in "Janie." Joan Crawford, who plays Mildred Pearce, is, I am told, negotiating with Edward Small for the lead in "Bella Donna." That would give La Crawford one of the really dramatic parts of her career.

★ ★ ★

I NEVER KNEW that William Dieterle was under contract to David Selznick until Hal Wallis announced that he had borrowed the director from Selznick. Wallis is in New York and he sends back word that Dieterle will direct "The Love Letter," with Ann Richards, which, incidentally, will be one of his first when he starts work at Paramount. He had been particularly eager to get Dieterle because they had worked together on the Warner lot in the never-to-be-forgotten "Louis Pasteur" and "Emile Zola." They were both Academy Award pictures.

THE ONE AND ONLY ZaSu Pitts, of the fluttery hands, is coming back to the movies. It must be five years or more since ZaSu made a picture, and now she's heading home from Broadway to play the spinster murderess in "Ten Little Indians" for Rena Clair. I saw ZaSu in New York when she was appearing in "Ramshackle Inn" and she was very good. Her mannerisms certainly kept a host of imitators in good material for years.

MARY AND JOE BREEN thank God that their two boys, who were injured, are alive. So many people know red-headed Tommy, an attractive youngster, who is in a hospital now in Honolulu. He has lost his right leg and his left one is badly shattered. But, as Joe says, at least he's alive. Tommy's in the Marines. Joe, Jr., a captain in the Army, was injured at Saipan, shot in the neck, but not badly hurt. The third son, Jimmie, a major in the Marines, has been serving Uncle Sam for three years. So the Breens have something of which to feel very proud. Joe is head of the Breen Office.

ANITA LOOS SAW the prettiest girl she says she has ever seen in her life running an elevator at the May company. When she went upstairs for a fitting she remarked to the department head that the girl should be in movies, she was so beautiful. "All right," said the manager, "I'll send for her." On close inspection she was even more beautiful. So Anita said: "How would you like to have a test?" "Oh, don't bother, Miss Loos," said the girl. "I am having a test in the morning for Mervyn Le Roy."

I've just heard about a young man named Dick Irving Hyland, who sold Republic "The Gay Echo" for $10,000. Think I ought to sue him for using the word "Gay"? He co-authored this story with M. Coates Webster, but that isn't the half of it . . . In 16 months Mr. Hyland has written and sold six short stories, produced a picture and written a scenario. It makes me tired just to think of it.

She'll wear them at personal appearance and camp tours; Skeets Gallagher is in town visiting the Buster Collers. He will spend a few days in San Francisco and return here to meet Pauline and the two youngsters; Dr. Loos and his daughter, Mary Anita, gave one of the most enjoyable parties of the year at their ranch. It once belonged to Jose Mojica, who later entered a monastery, and it is really a touch of old California. Gov. Earl Warren who went fishing today, was the guest of honor with Mrs. Warren, and no one laughed louder at the impromptu show, put on by some of the guests, than Hal Roach, Jr. Fredric March and Florence Eldridge, Arthur Lake, Dr. Lees and Mrs. Nan Kelly were very busy. Lee Cowan was master of ceremonies and Margo did a jitterbug dance with castanets that is something new. Gail Patrick, whom I haven't seen since she retired from the screen, was there with her husband, Count de Sibi. He played some of his original compositions that are wonderful. WHEN THE Duchess of Windsor went to the Coq Rouge for dinner recently, she and her friends stopped in the cocktail lounge for a drink before going into the main room. Other guests, of the plain, non-royal, non-best-dressed, merely curious variety, missed an arty gesture of the Duchess as she gave her order to the low-bowing waiter. How does the wife of an ex-king order a drink? In what regal phrases does she couch her desire for an aperitif? I've wondered. But her lones were too soft to catch, and the bent ears learned nothing.

What the Duchess said was: "I'll have a Scotch old-fashioned. Never mind all the cabbage. Just give me a little lemon peel in it."

Proving that Her Royal Highness (o. k., all the subscribers to the Almanach de Gotha can write me letters) is after all a simple American girl, who has acquired a title but no fancy ways.

IN THE STORK CLUB the other night a chum asked Bing Crosby if he liked to rhumba. "Yes," said Bing, "but I do a Joe Schenck rhumba" . . . "What kind of a rhumba is that?" he was asked . . . He replied: "You walk a little, and you talk a little."

Readers of this column who are good at figuring things out weren't too surprised at the Page One stories on the Cary Grant-Barbara Hutton breakup. On Aug. 7 this space noted: "One of Hollywood's 'happiest' couples will surprise the nation by parting. It will be her third divorce, his second."

Another "blind" item, many weeks ago, told the story more fully. Now I can elaborate a little and mention that Barbara's friends are quite sure she has her fourth husband selected already. He is neither an actor nor a nobleman, but gets his name in the gossip columns frequently, and often makes the society notes. Recently he figured as a minor character in a Page One Hollywood story.

Star Shine By Sidney Skolsky

HOLLYWOOD, Aug. 18 — Regardless of everything that has been said about a movie, the small town exhibitor, writing in the Motion Picture Herald, generally comes across with a topper.

Exhibitor R. J. Neely of Jonesboro, Ill., has this to say about "Riding High": "Good; lots of laughs and that is what our customers want. Did average business. Not so good as I expected, but maybe I expect too much anyway." There's a fellow who admits that no picture is going to come up to his expectations.

"See Here, Private Hargrove," which got excellent reviews from the movie critics, didn't from Exhibitor Sid Dickler of Pittsburgh, Pa. Dickler, an exhibitor who recently got an honorable discharge from the Army, writes: "Billed and exploited as 'funniest G I comedy of all time.' This reviewer somewhat disappointed in story (too much garbage can stuff) . . . Public opinion seemed O. K. . . . Could have used many funny details of Army life to add further laughs." Or, what he is trying to say is that the picture should have been, "See Here, Private Dickler."

Exhibitor A. E. Hancock of Columbia City, Ind., really lets go about "The Imposter." "Too bad the shortage of raw stock didn't catch up with this one. Gabin unknown. It would not rate even good enough for the second half of a bill. Wasted date and no business. Skip it if you can; they won't like it, and it's a cheap, tawdry melodrama . . . There are no bright moments in the picture" . . . There is no doubt about the fact that Exhibitor Hancock didn't like the picture.

EXHIBITORS even editorialize in their comments on the pictures. Exhibitor F. R. Crist of Loveland, O., has this speech to make about "Passage to Marseilles": "Very dark picture with French accent and a war background. Why do producers try to cram these foreign countries down our throats? Why do we have to buy their friendship at the price it is costing us? Our forefathers fought to get away from that foreign rule. Now folks are trying to force us back into it. Let's have free America again."

Exhibitors, of course, often have a difference of opinion about the same picture. Exhibitor Ralph Raspa of Riverville W. Va., writes about "Corvette K-225": "Not a very good show; people thought it was an English import which can't draw a crowd . . ."

While Exhibitor Charles H. Richelieu of Tarpon Springs, Fla., writing about the same picture, simply said: "Good picture, good business."

Exhibitor Harland Rankin is displeased with "Up in Arms": "Danny Kaye doesn't time them up to get in. We did a little extra business because they had no where else to go" . . . This exhibitor even finds an excuse for good business.

★ ★ ★

THEREFORE you know by now that there is no telling what an exhibitor will say about a picture. That's what makes his remarks interesting, although you may not agree with him.

Cricket Club Guests

BANDLEADER HORACE HEIDT, his attractive wife and little daughter cooled off at the Longwood Cricket Club pool yesterday as guests of Debutante Sheila Driscoll.

They met through Sheila's friend, Jack Rourke, a Dartmouth graduate who writes script for the Heidt broadcasts. Several evenings while the bandleader and his musical knights were appearing at a downtown theater Rourke took Mr. and Mrs. Heidt to call on the Driscolls after the show.

Adventure in Fragrance

Beauty

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

ONCE AGAIN NECESSITY has proved a good fairy in the creation of cream colognes to bring you a new beauty luxury that will delight your heart. You will want . . . literally . . . to bathe in them in these days . . . and you can. Victory colognes . . . because they use less alcohol in their manufacture . . . and that's needed for munitions you know . . . they will inspire you with the joy of victory as well.

This new adventure in fragrance is an adventure that's utterly different from any you've ever had before. It's going to be delightful, exciting, stimulating . . . and though mere words fall short of the mark . . . we'll try to describe their inestimable loveliness.

Imagine a shower . . . not of rain . . . but of soft, dewy-fresh clover petals falling over your face . . . covering your whole body in a blanket of their sweet enchantment. Imagine the sweetness of a honeysuckle mist enveloping your face, neck, hands, arms, body and lingering on for hours. That's what is going to happen to you when you smooth on these new cream colognes which have truly captured the beloved delight of pink clover and honeysuckle.

As refreshing and exhilarating as these colognes are . . . this new cream cologne holds an important added pleasure for you. Spray it on . . . rub it on . . . shower it on . . . and all the luxurious refreshing delight of using cologne is yours . . . and, in addition, your skin takes on . . . not only a glorious fragrance . . . but becomes softer, silkier, satin-smooth.

For this new cream cologne has an emollient base that works wonders on sensitive skin. After salt-water or hard-water bathing . . . it brings you not only the gift of fragrance . . . but it satinizes your skin. There's refreshment in hot days when you use cream colognes . . . and your skin drinks it with ravenous enjoyment.

For the name of these new and important cream colognes, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4900, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DELIGHTFUL SKIN REFRESHMENT . . . to top off that dip in the ocean or that at-home tub . . . is a cream cologne . . . smoothing to the skin and luscious to the touch. A Masculine Suffix

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

To settle an argument, will you please answer this question: Is it ever correct to add "junior" to the name of a girl named for her mother? ELISABETH.

No; "junior" is a masculine suffix. The daughter may be referred to as "young Mary Robinson"; or, as is the case of a New York mother and daughter well-known professionally, the daughter is "Mary Robinson, younger."

My Day

By Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

HYDE PARK, THURSDAY—I sometimes think that through art we are going to draw nearer some of our Latin American neighbors and understand them better than we can through other contacts.

I was therefore interested to hear the other day that Contemporary Arts of New York was holding a joint exhibition of the work of Brazilian and American painters, first in the National Museum in Rio De Janeiro, and later in San Paulo. Art speaks a language which is universally understood.

★ ★ ★

THE OTHER EVENING I went to my Chapel Corners grange meeting and was very much interested in some pictures shown by Mr. Williams, the county agent, dealing with soil erosion in Dutchess county.

I am very glad that all over this country we are becoming conscious of the danger of having top soil washed away by heavy rains.

Mr. Williams also showed us that contour plowing, as well as strip planting, was beginning to be done, and that reforestation was gaining throughout the country.

It is important to do this work in our Eastern States, even though much of our thought so far has been centered on the Southern and Western States, where drouth and floods have done so much damage in the past few years.

★ ★ ★

THE MASTER of a neighboring grange spoke and some letters were read from boys overseas who are members of the grange.

I was struck by the fact that the attendance was limited almost entirely to older men and women and girls. The master of the Fall-Kill Grange told us that he had been threshing and that two men of 70 and two young boys were all he could muster for work which would ordinarily be done by men in the prime of life.

I think too little has been said about the contribution to the war effort by the farmers of this country. Very largely the young men have gone to war and the older men are carrying on—increasing their work hours and doing heavy labor which they had thought by this time would lie behind them.

Thirsty Birds

The birds need water these dry, hot days just as much as humans, so don't forget them.

This is the appeal of the Massachusetts Audubon Society in a warning that birds suffer most in residential districts where there are no natural sources such as lakes and streams. If you have a bird bath, keep it filled. If not, put out a shallow pan of water.

Giant Berets Popular

By BETTINA BEDWELL

BERETS that are cartwheel size are the newest kind of millinery in that popular category. Some of these new berets are huge and floppy and worn to one side like the beret that Rembrandt used to wear.

Others are blown up like round sofa cushions and worn on top of the head. Maybe this sounds awful, but actually these big berets have their own charm, which isn't insignificant.

Miss Dulin has sketched one of the thick, round kind for you. This comes from Suzanne and Roger, and is a very dressy model, being covered with rust-colored feathers that give it the softness of a cloud hovering over your brow. The brown veil that covers the face and is tied in a bow at the back is attached under the beret.

Wine With Fresh Fruit Sure Delight to Guests

By MARTHA LEE

SUMMER is the time to enjoy to the full the ambrosial flavor of fresh fruit and wine. This versatile combination is one of the most spectacular dramatizations of the way of wine with foods.

The choice of wine is not limited to a few types. All wines go well with fruit. The simplest compote is made by pouring wine over fruits, chilling and serving in sherbet dishes. Frequently the hostess will enjoy featuring a combination of fruits - including melon balls—in half of the cantaloupe.

For another party occasion, a fruit in wine compote served in the whole pineapple shell is colorful and dramatic—certain to delight the guests. Wedges of fresh pineapple (cut from the shell) are good combined with berries for this service.

APPLESAUCE TREATS

Tipsy apple tartlets like tipsy cake of old English fame, are "made of pastry and saturated with wine." With these two similarities, and the fact that both are elegant desserts, all claims to kinship cease. For tipsy cake is cake and tipsy tartlets are a miniature version of apple pie.

The flavorsome way of wine with fruit is nowhere displayed to better advantage than in tipsy apple tarts. Warm applesauce flavored with wine and fragrant with respectable measures of cinnamon and mace makes the filling for the tartlets. Wine is used in place of water in preparing the applesauce and as tantalizing an aroma as ever was wafted from anyone's kitchen issues from the kettle in which this applesauce is simmering.

TIPSY APPLE TARTLETS

5 apples
½ cup wine (Tokay, Muscatel, Angelica or Port)
¾ cup sugar ½ tsp. mace
½ tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. grated lemon rind
6 baked tart shells
6 baked toppings for tart shells

Pare the apples and cut in eighths. Add wine (and ¼ cup water if the apples are not very juicy) and cook slowly in a covered kettle for 20 to 30 minutes or until soft. Stir to prevent sticking. Add the sugar and cook long enough to dissolve sugar. Add spices and lemon rind. Fill warm tart shells with warm applesauce. Serve warm. Makes 6 tarts.

A less sweet variation of tipsy applesauce is unexcelled as an accompaniment to roast duck or pork. Enough applesauce for today's tarts and Sunday's roast may be cooked at the same time. For two services double all ingredients in the recipe except the sugar. Pour off the sauce to be used with the roast and add more sugar to the sauce for tartlets.

Fruit in wine is appropriate for salad service also. The following recipe features fruits molded in a jelly made with red table wine. This wine discovers the finest flavors of the sliced peaches and berries. This cool colorful jelly may be featured as either the dessert or the salad course.

Fashion

THE ARTISTIC TREND in fashions is definitely noted in this bright red velvet beret . . . draped dramatically to one side . . . and reflecting the picturesque richness of autumn Rennaissance inspirations. The striking trim of gold beads stamps its wearability both for afternoon and evening. CBS Actress Irene Winston chose it from the Leslie-James's Hollywood collection of originals. —R. M.

FRUITS IN RED WINE JELLY

2 tbsp. gelatin
½ cup cold water
1 cup boiling water
½ cup sugar (more if used for dessert)
1 cup blackberry juice
1 cup any red table wine
2 tbsp. lemon juice
Sliced peaches and whole blackberries

Soak gelatin in cold water. Dissolve in boiling water. Add sugar to blackberry juice. Heat to dissolve sugar. Add to dissolved gelatin. Add wine and lemon juice. Cool. Pour small amount in molds. When mixture begins to congeal, arrange fruits in partially congealed gelatin. Fill molds. Chill. Unmold and serve on lettuce or use more sugar and serve as desert.

SHERRY CHARLOTTE

1-3 cup sugar Few grains salt
2 eggs, separated
Grated rind and juice of 1 lemon
1-3 cup sherry wine
18 small lady fingers

Mix sugar, salt, egg yolks, lemon rind and juice and sherry in enamel saucepan. Place over low heat and cook slowly, stirring constantly with wire whisk until mixture thickens. Beat for a few minutes until frothy, then remove from heat. Beat egg whites stiff, and gradually add hot mixture, beating constantly. Line one large or 6 individual serving dishes with split lady-fingers, standing them on end around sides of dishes. Pour in fluffy mixture and chill. Serve topped with whipped cream. Makes 6 servings.

Vote for Hay

LEWISTON, Ida., Aug. 18 (AP) — When Glen Taylor, nominated for the U. S. Senate by Idaho Democrats, called on a farmer recently, he found him putting up hay. The farmer suggested, "You take this pitchfork and follow while we talk politics."

Taylor started pitching. Every time he attempted to start a political conversation, the farmer would say, "soon's the next load's in." Finally the farmer shook hands and said:

"Thanks. I wanted to find out if you've got what it takes. You have."

Taylor said today that he thinks he has at least one vote . . . He knows he has at least one blister.

'Sensations' Year in Advance

Jumping up the calendar a year, "Sensations of 1945" at Loew's State and Orpheum is a preview of what fun we hope to have when V-Day comes around.

They call it next year's showmanship now, which probably is as neat a description as you can give this merry musical. Director Andrew Stone promises a series of them, and if star names, big bands, laughs and pretty gals are what you go for, you can find them now and watch for them later.

Miss Taps, Eleanor Powell, is the dancing star, and aside from having some sensational new routines, she's a lady press agent who ought to be able to talk any editor into a front page story.

Eleanor's first step is to promote a swank night club. A unique spot, too. You'll find Mal Haller and his unicycle, and Pallenberg's bears (they dance), the roller-skating Copelands, that dare-devil wire-walker, Herbert Castle, Indian club swingers, teeter-board artists, and Dorothy Donegan, whose boogie-woogie at the keyboard is only terrific.

And that's but the beginning. For W. C. Fields and Sophie Tucker have special spots—and that's a pair that can't miss.

For swing and jive fans, there are Cab Calloway and Woody Herman, and to lend a little note of dignity, distinguished C. Aubrey Smith is around.

ELEANOR PARKER, PAUL HENREID
"Between Two Worlds," Par-Fen

Bill Sparkles At Para-Fen

There's plenty of fun in "Make Your Own Bed," which is one of the first-runners at the Paramount and Fenway. This time Jack Carson gets a break, and about time.

To be sure, he goes slapstick in a big way. But even in a goofy and incredible story, Mr. Carson has something there. The lad is really a riot.

There's another and more serious tenant unreeling at the twin houses. It's "Between Two Worlds," and with a cast that boasts John Garfield, Paul Henreid, Eleanor Parker, George Tobias, Faye Emerson, George Coulouris, Edmund Gwenn and Sydney Greenstreet. Along with a knockout re-write job of "Outward Bound," it's high class and absorbing screen entertainment.

The laughs are reserved, however, for "Make Your Own Bed." It seems that Alan Hale, usually the rough and tough Robin Hood of Hollywood, is this time concerned with the problem of getting domestic help. Jack is pressed into service by the simple ruse of Mr. Hale's pretending that there are some Nazi spies lurking around his premises.

Director Edward Blatt has done a splendid job with "Outward Bound," modernizing the plot so that these 1944 passengers on a ship at sea, bound for the hereafter, are victims of a London blitz.

D'Artega's Band-Show Takes K-Boston Stage

By DON WARD

This week's dementia at the RKO-Boston is D'Artega and his all-girl orchestra. But that ain't all. With the band are Ella Mae Morse, the Cow-Cow Boogie Girl Gil Lamb, the funny boy from Hollywood; The Pickerts, comical stilt dancers, and Miss Billie Joyce, who is called a "vocalist."

Incidentally, it seems that vocalists do not sing, since they are required to blur the melodic line of a song in the current fashion. Sometimes its all blur and no song, which is where Miss Ella Mae Morse, the Cow-Cow Boogie Girl, comes in. Don't know what Miss Morse does to a song, but the audience adores it. They whistled, stamped and talk on especially for something called "Milkmen, Keep Those Bottles Quiet!"

Whew!

Gil Lamb, ending in nonsensical comedy that sadly lacks a good end funny! seems sensible by comparison. The audience was discussed to heckle him at the first show, for Mr. Lamb always knew what to say.

Back to the band. Looking in the scenic lines, the girls made it up in specialty numbers. Jane, violinist, can whistle D'Artega's own "Blue of the Evening" with the best of them, and the pianist and the girl at the xylophone were okay, too.

Civilians Face Worst Butter Shortage

Civilians probably will receive less butter from now through the end of the year than in any other comparable period since the start of the war, the Bureau of Agricultural Economics reported today.

Butter production is less than last year and cold storage stocks are also below those of 1943.

Yanks Laugh at Heat In Football Drills

By JACK CONWAY

HERB KOPF, manager of the Boston Yanks of the National Football League, does not believe a little thing like jungle weather should hold up the training of his club. He has had his big squad at Dean Academy breezing through two-hour workouts in the morning and again in the afternoon as if soaring temperatures were not any more important than a mediocre opposing tackle.

When all of the Yanks have reported for practice, the squad will number more than 40 players, which should give Kopf a chance to get together a first-class team.

Herb Kopf

"We do not claim we shall be champions or that we shall win many games," said Kopf frankly, "but we do guarantee Boston a colorful club that will be in there fighting to win every second it is on the field."

Owner Ted Collins and Kopf have done a first-class job in securing as much talent as they have at Dean. They have been obliged to go out and secure the needed material where they could, as not one of the 30 players drafted by the Yanks is available for football this fall. All of the drafted men, headed by Marine Lt. Angelo Bertelli, are in service. It will not be until the war has ended that the Yanks will be able to do any real building. Meanwhile, Ted Collins and Herb Kopf will get along as best they can with the available players.

Dave Smukler Fullback

DAVE SMUKLER, who is working out daily with the Yanks' squad, will play fullback. Smukler weighed 225 pounds when he reported and that is about his playing weight. The former Temple and Philadelphia Eagles star is in good condition and he says that after a week of practice he will be ready to cut loose.

Smukler has a medical discharge from the army, and as a result he will be able to play the full season with the Yanks. Smukler should be a tower of strength at full back. He hits the line well, while he has sufficient speed to circle the ends or step through holes in the line.

While Smukler does not possess the speed of Bob Davis and Paul Sanders, he is still as fast as the average run of fullbacks in professional football.

George Cafego, All-America when at Tennessee, is also expected to star for the Yanks.

Dick Harrison, who played at Boston College under Frank Leahy, is looking forward to a successful season with the Yanks. John Lock, a fullback from Fordham and Green Bay, is also expected to do well.

You may be sure that Herb Kopf will get the most out of his material. Kopf is a modern, streamline coach. He believes in wide-open and trick formations. He knows that the public does not wish to watch routine line plays. This is an age of razzle dazzle football and Kopf is one of the leaders in this style of play.

All-Star Game Aug. 30

THE CHICAGO BEARS will clash with the College All-Stars at the Dyche Stadium, Evanston, Ill., on Aug. 30. A capacity crowd of 47,000 will watch the game.

The All-Stars will be without the services of Jim White, All-America at Notre Dame, and other former college greats who are in the Navy. They will still manage to put a first-class team in the field.

The Bears will once more rely upon their famous T formation. Their stars will include Garry Famiglietti, Ray McLean, Henry Margarita, Ray Notting, George Musso, Bob Masters and Clyde (Bulldog) Turner.

★ ★ ★

Electric Starting Gate

THERE WILL be an electric starting gate at the Marshfield Fair races which open on Aug. 29 and run through Labor Day, Sept. 4. This will assure all horses an even break at the start of the race.

Bob Frend, starter at Rockingham Park and Suffolk Downs, will once more be starter at Mashfield. He will be assisted by the crack crew he had at Suffolk Downs and at Rockingham.

Ernie Spartell, director of racing at Mashfield, reports 50 horses are already on the grounds while as many more are at Brockton getting ready for the Marshfield races. It is expected that 200 more horses will be shipped to Marshfield from Maryland and Canada. With $17,500 in purses, Marshfield will attract the better half-mile horses during its six-day meeting.

Linehans and Caseys Tonight

The first rain in weeks forced a cancellation of the Park League finals opener between the Linehan Club and Dick Casey Club last night so the two will try to start again tonight at the Dorchester Town Field.

Ceremonies that were to take place were also held over until this evening and the same city and park department celebrities will be on hand.

Bill Benson won't make any changes and will stick along with his original lineup with young Frank Reardon in the box. But Dick Casey may shift from his original mound choice of Charley Bird to Leo Galligan. Other than that the defending team will remain intact.

RECORD FAVORS LINEHANS

The Linehans hold a nice edge over the Caseys in the regular season play and the Southie Club, because of that record, feels confident that it can trim the defenders in the playoffs. The club has the pitching and the hitting strength to carry it far but the Dorchester champions are equal to the Linehans in those departments.

Casey has six regulars hitting over .400 and has five pitchers he can throw into the game.

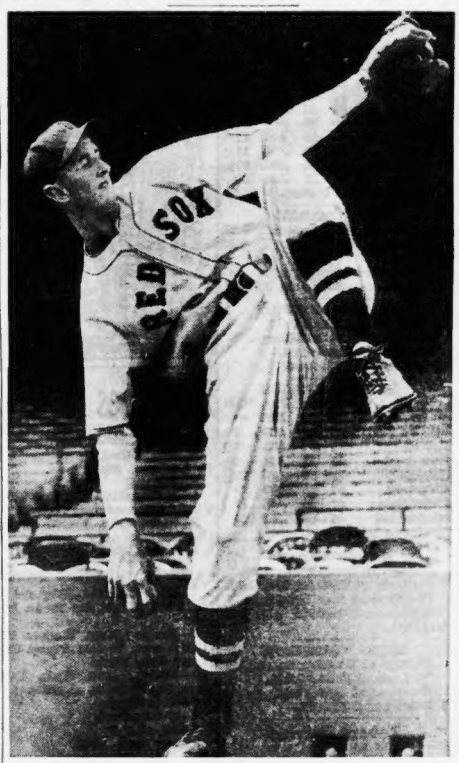
Storm Is Now Blamed For Sox Win Failure

By BILL GRIMES

Now, Roger "Doc" Cramer is on Joe Cronin's blacklist. It was the former Red Sox center fielder who came through with a timely hit to give the Detroit Tigers a 3-to-3 draw in yesterday's abbreviated game at Fenway Park.



COURAGEOUS EMMETT O'NEILL—Seeks five in a row for himself and the Sox as he faces Tigers today in one of the twin bill offerings.

The Red Sox looked to be on their way to a win yesterday. They were well on their way to beat the Tigers but the weather man horned in and turned on the rain in the 4th round. And, then, after a 57-minute intermission, play was resumed. The Tigers were about ready to concede. They saw another storm coming up and therefore began to stall.

Dizzy Trout refused to pitch until the mound was covered with sawdust. The Red Sox didn't try too hard to score in their half of the 4th. They wanted to get in the Detroit half of the 5th round. Then, it would be a ball game if the rain came again.

RED SOX GET CARELESS

It was dark enough to have called the game in the 5th. Woods eased up on a pitch and Bob Swift, notoriously a weak hitter, slapped a hit to left. Joe Orengo, another poor sticker, worked Woods for a walk and after Trout's sacrifice, "Doc" Cramer sliced a single to left and the score was tie.

Woods was relieved by "Red" Barrett after he had walked Eddie Mayo and the former Columbus Red Bird pored it to Jimmy Outlaw and Rudy York and stopped a serious Detroit threat to snatch a victory out of what should have been a defeat.

SOX MAY TAKE FLOP

The Red Sox and the Tigers will play a double-header this afternoon. Emmett O'Neill who has turned in four straight wins, will pitch the first game against Hal Newhouser, who is seeking his 20th victory of the year. In the nightcap, Clem Hausmann will oppose Johnny Gorsica.

The Tigers and Yankees are now deadlocked in third place, one-half game behind the Red Sox. And, if the Cronimen blow two today, they will drop back into fourth place regardless of the outcome of the Yankee-Cleveland game in New York.

O'Neill Facts

Emmett O'Neill, the Red Sox righthander, who failed to register a win between May 12 and July 24, but who since apparently can't be beaten, will toe the mound today in one of the games of the twin bill with Detroit at Fenway Park. Young Emmett, who may in a measure, compensate for the loss of Tex Hughson, has allowed only two runs and 13 hits in his last 27 innings. That's pitching, brother. In his last four starts O'Neill has licked Detroit, 15-5; Washington, 4-0; Chicago, 2-1, and St. Louis, 5-1, in that turn.

M'Phail Would Hold McCarthy as Pilot

By FRED HOEY

If and when Larry McPhail and his syndicate purchase the New York Yankees and their extensive ramifications, Joe McCarthy will be retained as manager. Master Showman McPhail is one ace and McCarthy the other. With aces back-to-back smart Larry is not one to discard the one ace he has in the hole.

McCarthy with the Yanks has won seven World Series and eight American League pennants. Joe won one pennant with the Chicago Cubs, before he moved onto Gotham. His record with Louisville of the Association was just as brilliant.

YANK CROWDS DWINDLE

Ordinarily the sale of a major league club is a function and ceremony reserved exclusively for the winter off-season when the turnstiles are wrapped in canvas, the box office sealed and nothing is being laid on the line. Then, too, there is that extensive newspaper publicity a club receives in the winter that it would fail to get during the regular season.

But the Ruppert estate heirs probably see the handwriting on the wall. The Yankees, 7½ games behind the pace, and only six weeks remaining of the current season, are pretty definitely out of the 1944 race.

Attendance figures at the Yankee Stadium have fallen to a new low with a week-day average of 5000, which is tough pickings in America's largest city.

It wouldn't be surprising if something definite and positive developed in the sale of the Yankees even before the season closes.

Nelson and McSpaden Continue to Breeze

SPOKANE, Wash., Aug. 18 (AP)—While the two tournament hot shots breezed through to easy victories, two other name players were tumbled out of competition to provide the upsets of second round matches of the 1944 National P. G. A. golf championship.

Sox and Tigers Play 2 Games at Fenway

Some of the Red Sox and Tigers' players were of the opinion that yesterday was even more depressing than Wednesday . . . And, if the fans think it was hot in the stands, they should spend an afternoon on either players bench.

The Tigers' run in the opening inning was a gift . . . Eddie Mayo was awarded second base on "Skeeter" Newsome's overthrow and scored when George Metkovich cut off Pete Fox's perfect throw, which had the former Brave by a wide margin.

After their series with the Yankees, the Tigers will stop over at Buffalo to play a night exhibition game against the Bisons . . . It will be their third non-league game of this trip.

Since he has been with the Red Sox, Jim Tabor has connected with some long home run drives but his 10th of the year, which he hit yesterday with Bobby Doerr on first, compares favorably with any of his previous distant clouts . . . It cleared the screen and landed on a ramp of a garage on the far side of Landsdowne st.

Joe Bowman is not a hot weather pitcher, so George Woods took his turn yesterday.

OLD DOC STILL THERE

Despite his age, "Doc" Cramer breaks on a ball as fast as any of the present day American League center fielders with the exception of Thurman Tucker of the White Sox . . . And, brother, "Doc" can still throw that agate . . . He heaved one from deep center field to Mike Higgins when Pete Fox went over to third after catching Bob Johnson's hoist and the ball got there just a fraction of a second after Pete did.

Paul "Dizzy" Trout didn't take kindly to the way the Red Sox hopped on him and for an "out" he didn't see eye to eye with Umpire-in-Chief Bill Grieve on balls and strikes . . . The rain started with Dick Wakefield at bat in the 4th and before Pinky Woods got Mike Higgins, the skies opened up.

Little Frankie Kelly, the visiting club's' bat boy, got a cold shower racing around the infield and outfield gathering up gloves for the Tigers . . . The wind slipped under the canvas and the ground crew had a battle covering the infield . . .

PARTEE TAKES TREATMENT

An old injury cropped up on Roy Partee and the popular little Red Sox catcher is taking daily diathermy treatments . . . After the wind had boxed the compass, the game was resumed but Dizzy Trout insisted that the mound was too slippery and refused to pitch until it had been covered with sawdust . . . He was obviously stalling, hoping that another storm which was making up in the West would save him from a defeat.

Hal Wagner and "Skeeter" Newsome singled with none down the 4th but were left stranded . . . Then, the Tigers proceded to get Woods out of there . . . Bob Swift singled, Joe Orengo walked and after "Dizzy" Trout had sacrifated the runners along a base, Cramer sliced one to left field and the score was tie.

After Woods had walked Eddie Mayo, Joe Cronin waved for "Red" Barrett to take over the pitching assignment.

Barrett didn't serve up any "dead fish" . . . He poured it to Jimmy Outlaw and Rudy York, who flied out and struck out respectively . . .

Cards Out to Break Win Record of Cubs

By Associated Press

No longer content with a mere National League pennant, the St. Louis Cardinals today hitched their wagon to a star and soared after a new all-time winning record under the impetus of a month-long record of 23 victories in 27 starts.

If the Red Birds take 33 of their remaining 45 contests, Manager Billy Southworth will have the satisfaction of tying the 38-year-old standard set by Frank Chance's Chicago Cubs, who won 116 games in 1906.

As the Cards have captured 81 and lost 28 to date for a .743 percentage and need only a .778 gait to match the record, prospects of a new mark were bright.

Since the defending champs started to roll in high gear July 22, they have maintained a .852 percentage and given no signs of slacking.

FLAG IN BAG

Even Pittsburgh's 11-straight splurge into temporary control of the second place situation had to take a back seat to St. Louis' mad rush down the stretch. Tying the Chicago mark was a rousing incentive to keep the Cards bearing down, although the flag was "in the bag" with a 17½-game lead.

Chunky Max Lanier earned his fifth shutout last night as the Cards humbled New York, 7-0, for the Giants' tenth successive defeat. It was Lanier's 16th victory and Ewald Pyle's sixth loss with three St. Louis double plays featuring.

Pittsburgh stretched its streak to 11 by trimming the Phils in a doubleheader, 7-6 and 6-5 in 10 innings. Bob Elliott's triple scoring Jack Barrett in the eighth was the big blow in the first when Xavier Rescigno notched his seventh triumph.

Pete Coscarart drove home Nick Strincevich in the 10th to let the rookie pitcher win his ninth at Dick Barrett's expense in the second.

Jim Tobin was belted for 14 blows before he gave way after a ninth-inning injury but his Boston Braves outslugged Chicago, 7-5. Cincinnati and Brooklyn were rained out of a morning game.

BROWNS HAVE 7 GAME LEAD

St. Louis lengthened its American League lead to 7 games by doubling the score on the Athletics, 10-5, with Vern Stephens' 15th homer sparking a game-winning rally for Nels Potter who has captured his last six outings. Jess "Sunday Pitcher" Flores was the loser.

The Yankees slaughtered Cleveland, 10-3, with Johnny Lindell's five hits showing the way, four of them being doubles to tie a major league record held jointly by 19 men. New York pulled into a third-place tie with Detroit when the Tigers and Red Sox had to call it quits in the sixth because of rain, with the score tied, 3-3.

Hal Trosky's long outfield fly scored Guy Curtright with the only run as the Chica White Sox blanked Washington, 1-0, behind Bill Dietrich's five-hit chucking.

Bill of Rights Aid to Sports

BATON ROUGE, La., Aug. 18 (AP)—Coach Bernie Moore of Louisiana State University, pondering over postwar football, predicted today that "the GI bill of rights will place collegiate football on the highest and finest competitive level that this country has ever seen."

"The way to look at it," said the gray-haired mentor, "millions of boys now in service will return to college after the war, financed by Uncle Sam and those days of washing dishes, scrubbing floors and butting heads for an education and three squares a day will be temporarily postponed.

Moore, who led his Bayou Bengals to an Orange Bowl victory over Texas A. & M. last year, said, "I have seen and coached a great many athletes that I knew were playing football only because it was their sole method of fulfilling their educational objective.

Vets Dominate Longwood Play

The topnotchers in the women's tennis world have completely stolen the limelight at the Longwood Cricket Club where they have displayed their wares for the past three days under the scorching sun in their last practice tourney before the Nationals.

So completely have they dominated activities the Veterans' Tourney, the main reason for staging a tennis week this year, has been almost forgotten.

The old timers are easy to forget when a dazzling bevy of national ranking names take the courts, but there are a few veterans who can't be overlooked.

The most prominent among these, in the men's division at least, is J. Gilbert Hall, an honorably discharged veteran of this war and the last one who came to Brookline for his first taste of tournament tennis since he joined the Army two and a half years ago.

Hall spent that time up until two weeks ago turning raw recruits into expert tank corpsmen at Fort Knox and tennis was an almost forgotten luxury. But the Army hasn't much use for a man 46, so Hall was released to civilian life.

EVEN OLD NASSAU IN

Other than Armand Bruneau of New York, Hall is the only formerly seeded player entered. His best bid for fame was in '35 when he held number six ranking but he was ranked around 15th for over 10 years. He won the National Clay Court doubles three years running, was twice runner up in the National Clay singles and won the Canadian title once.

Oddly enough despite this past record he's seeded number two at Longwood. Number one is William L. Nassau of Paoli, Pa., who won the title two years ago, the last time the tourney was held.

Nassau, a school-teacher, plays in tourneys all summer and claims he's playing the best tennis of his life. The defending champion doesn't relish his favored position as he feels Hall, because of his "youth" and good physical shape, will win.

In the women's invitation play Pauline Betz and Louise Brough still dominate the field as each won her match yesterday. Betz was no match for Mrs. Rinbany who went down in straight sets, 6—0, 6—1, but Brough had her hands full with Shirley Frye. Dodo Bundy beat Doris Hart in a see-saw match to stay in the running but her year away from the game may tell if she does get into the finals.

Learn to Swim Card Loaded With Class

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Instructors of the Learn To Swim program, conducted this summer, will be turning out en masse at Carson Beach, South Boston, Sunday afternoon to root for their pupils in the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser—Boston Park Department championship meet of 16 all-feature events.

The kids will be moving to the starting line in special events for newcomers—events turned over especially to novices most of whom will be competing for prizes for the first time.

Park Commissioner William P. Long's graduates from seven beaches, scattered throughout the city, will be competing in an overpowering quantity. Helen Carroll's Winchester Swimming Club will send a trio of competitors. Johnnie Temple's team from the Tufts Square Pool, Medford, will be out to prove to the Medford Youth Commission that the reopening of the swimming hole was well worth the efforts.

In the boys 10-11-year-old division, Peter Farranger of the South Boston Boys' Club; Joseph Greene, Medford; Richard Wilkins, Boston Boys' Club; Richard Allen, Olneyville, Andrew Masso, Wanskuck, Stephen McKay and Wayne Dee of Tenean, and Paul McGowan and John Power of Winchester, will be battling it out. Entries in the girls divison have not been compiled as yet.

LOUISE SHERLOCK ON HAND

In the girls division, 12-13 years of age, the first draft of entries finds Barbara Pinstein and Ann Freedman of the Thomas Edison School; Louise Sherlock, Olneyville, Jean and Joan Senior of Wanskuck, Virginia Kelly and Lorraine Clough of Tenean; and Veronica Carpenter, Barbara Young, Virginia Gaffney and Beverly Gay of Winchester, going after the Record-American-Sunday Advertiser prizes.

The boys, 14-15, will have over 20 entries, topped by James Peckham, Quincy, and Tom Butler of the South Boston Boys' Club.

Golfer Scores Promised Ace

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Aug. 18 (AP)—Here's a golfer who bet he could shoot a hole in one—in a year's time—and made good with some 20 days to spare.

Last Sept. 2 Frank Hayes, celebrating his birthday at the Oakcrest Country Club, scored an ace on a 150-yard hole. R. F. Butts, his partner, bet he could match it before his birthday on Sept. 6, 1944.

Yesterday Butts shot a hole in one. Now he and seven other golfers who witnessed the wager, are awaiting a dinner at Hayes' expense.
